Data is Justice.

Data
Protects
Animal Welfare.

Life on Earth
Needs
Data.

Data
Access is Liberty

In February of 2017, the United States Department of Agriculture removed public access to thousands of reports detailing animal welfare in research labs, zoos, circuses, companies, and more.

[http://www.sciencemag.org/news/2017/02/trump-administration-blacks-out-animal-welfare-information]

Endangered Data Week

POSTAGE REQUIRED

TO:

Bunny Image Courtesy of: https://i.ytimg.com/vi/vGKZv0fv2V/maxresdefault.jpg | https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vGKZv0fv2V

Organizations like the Internet Archive are currently pursuing backup strategies outside of the United States of America to protect their vast archives of internet data from government censorship.

[http://www.theverge.com/2016/11/29/13778188/internet-archive-of-canada-backup-trump-surveillance-censorship]

Endangered Data Week

POSTAGE REQUIRED

TO:

Statue of Liberty clip art courtesy of: https://openclipart.org/detail/254013/statue-of-liberty-silhouette

The Senate and House of Representatives have both received proposed bills blocking funding for data used to provide geospatial information on racial disparities in access to affordable housing.

[http://endangereddataweek.org/about/]

Endangered Data Week

POSTAGE REQUIRED

TO:

Brass Scales of Justice Image Courtesy of: https://openclipart.org/detail/244046/brass-scales-of-justice-silhouette

Proposed cuts to the Environmental Protection Agency would limit researchers' ability to access and analyze crucial data for climate change research and mitigation, as well as reduce consumers' access to information such as the Energy Star appliance certification program.

[http://www.reuters.com/article/us-usa-trump-epa-climatechange-idUSKBN15906G]

Endangered Data Week

POSTAGE REQUIRED

TO:

Earth appears courtesy of: https://img.clipartfest.com/dae2b5b36a72963c3cfea607aa1a7ac_-silhouette-search-and-world-earth-clipart-transparent-silhouette_600-592.png